GREATEST OF OVER WATER FLIGHTS

Hydro-Aeroplane Trip to Avalon and Return Makes Martin World Famous

FLEW IN SUNSHINE ABOVE THE FOG

Santa Ana Aviator Received Wonderful Ovation From People at Avalon

Glenn L. Martin of Santa Ana yesterday became world famous. He flew his hydro-aeroplane from Newport Bay to Avalon, a distance of thirty-three miles, and back again, accomplishing the greatest across-water flight ever made by man.

Martin made aeronautical history yesterday. His flight was the longest flight ever made across water from land to land. The English channel is but twenty miles wide at the point where three great aviators have crossed it, the first to go being Bleriot, and he did not return by air. Martin flew thirty-three miles across, and returning covered probably thirty-eight miles.

On the way over he was 37 minutes in the air, and returning 42 minutes.

But few knew that Martin was to fly. It was only Thursday of this week that he made his first flight from water. With confidence in the seaworthiness of his craft should he be compelled to alight on water even in mid-channel, Martin concluded to go to Avalon.

Since the earliest days of his career as an aviator, and he has been an aviator less than two years, Martin has declared he would be the first man to fly to Catalina. Recently his plans assumed definite form. He expected to return from his engagement at Chico, which he filed last Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and take his time about preparing to cross. He figured on going in about two weeks.

Then came the announcement that Shafter was to fly from Long Beach today. Martin immediately hastened his preparations. His pontoon was completed at his factory at Griffith's Aviation Park, and shipped to Balboa, where the plane used at Chico was also shipped.

Charles Day, Martin's head mechanic, and Martin's assistants soon had the craft in shape for the first experiment. That was entirely successful, and immediately Martin concluded to attempt the Catalina trip.

Started at Noon
He started at 12:15 o'clock yesterday. He circled the bay, made certain that his engine was working perfectly, then he sailed off toward the island, passing over the S. P. wharf.

On Martin's knee was strapped a compass, by which he set his course. On one wrist was his watch, by which he judged the distance traveled, for he figured on going nearly a mile a minute. Before him was an aneroid barometer, by which he knew approximately the distance above the earth.

Martin then began to rise rapidly, and soon he was in the fog at 2000 feet above the water. It was six minutes after he started that Roy Knabenshue and Martin's father and mother, using glasses, lost sight of the machine.

It was a strange situation in which Martin found himself. He passed above the fog and was in bright sunlight, nothing but the heavens above him, and below he saw nothing but what he described as a "desert of fog."

He could see neither land nor water. The compass was then Martin's guide, and no mariner of the sea ever followed a compass more closely than did Martin, the mariner of the air, follow the instrument strapped to his knee.

After he had traveled what he thought was twenty-five miles, Martin came down, passed through the fog and found himself above the ocean, with Avalon three miles away. Below him were numerous fishing-boats. Seeing the ship come down out of the fog, the boats all headed for Avalon, believing it would land there.

Mexican Ambassador Claims There is no War at Home

EL PASO, Tex., May 11.—Unofficial reports indicate that the rebels are meeting with sweeping reverses at Bermejillo. Orozco has issued a call for every available reserve to join him immediately. Fighting began yesterday and is continuing fiercely today.

EL PASO, Tex., May 11.—Bringing a thousand miles of telegraph wire into play, General Joaquin Torres, commanding the government troops at Bermejillo, sat in a box car and talked to a United Press correspondent here. He said General Huerta has already started for Escalon to engage General Orozco. He said: "Aubert's cavalry yesterday defeated a detachment of Salazar's rebels near here, killing a hundred. The situation is shaping so as to insure federal victory. The whole revolution depends on the coming battle. Our troops are enthusiastic and our equipment perfect."

General Orozco is rushing every available rebel to Escalon, where the first engagement will occur. Reinforcements are coming from Durango and Sonora.

PERSONAL, Mex., May 11.—Federal victory in the coming battle of Escalon, and the death of the revolution within fifteen days, is the prediction of General Huerta, commander of the federals at Torreón. In less than an hour after his interview today with the United Press correspondent, Gen. Huerta ordered an advance on Escalon. It was expected the battle would begin at noon.

BIG BATTLES RAGE AS

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Coincident with the reception of Ambassador Calero by President Taft yesterday, the Department of State announced that two fierce battles are now in progress in Mexico, and that American citizens are fleeing, panic-stricken, to the coast.

Calero insists that a state of war does not exist in his country. In receiving Ambassador Calero, the president said: "It is to me a source of great regret that tranquility and progress should be disturbed by a state of unrest and internal dissension. It is my earnest wish that the cloud may soon pass away."

While the president was speaking to Senator Calero the State Department made public a formal statement in which it said:

"A fierce battle is said to be in progress at Tlahualilo, in the state of Culiacan, the forces engaged being somewhere in the neighborhood of 2000 on each side.

"Two carloads of wounded are said to have passed through Saltillo on the eighth after a battle at Monclova, but it is not said which side was victorious. Another battle is raging between Federal and Zapatistas at Tres Marias."

One hundred American refugees await the transport Buford at Salina Cruz, where, according to the State Department, considerable excitement exists.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Endeavoring to show that Roland Brothers, of Scranton, Pa., conspired to secure the impeachment of Commerce Court Judge Archbald, the latter's attorneys resumed the cross-examination of Edward Williams, the Scranton coal man who accuses Judge Archbald of profiting from sales of coal which, it is alleged, he used his official position to promote. Interstate Commerce Commissioner Meyer will be the next witness.

SCHOOLMASTERS ITCHING FOR GRIP ON MINISTERIAL SCALPS

Here is an opportunity for a baseball game that should not be allowed to go by the board.

The Schoolmasters' Club has challenged the Ministerial Association of Santa Ana to a game of baseball, time and place not stated.

The ministers have taken the challenge under consideration—not to say prayerful consideration—until the meeting of the association on Monday afternoon.

Short Sermon To Ordinary Businessmen

You want to succeed; you ought to, under fair competition. But you cannot succeed against the smothering tyranny of big business. The big monopolies will get YOU if you don't look out! So far, Taft and the courts have violently tapped the monopolies on the wrist with a lead pencil. Trust stocks are higher than ever. Progressives, with Roosevelt, may hope to really control the monopolies; under Taft there is not much hope of real control and reform.

TWO-AND-A-HALF TO ONE FAVOR TEDDY

This the Slogan of Santa Ana Roosevelt Boosters Tuesday

POLL OF CITY SHOWS IT EASILY POSSIBLE

Splendid But Quiet Work by the Roosevelt Republican Club

The Santa Ana Roosevelt Republican Club hasn't been making much noise, but has been doing some very thorough and effective work, and much credit is due those who have borne the brunt of the battle. Especial commendation is due to President Grubb and S. J. Jackman, chairman of the membership, registration and precinct work committee, and to President Steele Finley of the Orange County Progressive Republican League.

The club numbers 346 members, all voters and workers. A poll of the city was completed about a month ago, in which 1913 voters declared themselves to be Republicans. Of these 984 expressed their intention of voting for Roosevelt; for Taft, 319; for La Follette, 48. Since then more than 100 of the 489 who declined to express a preference have declared their intention of supporting Roosevelt. By Tuesday, Chairman Jackman says, they will all go for Roosevelt.

At a meeting last Thursday night arrangements for thorough work were completed. Twenty or more autos were placed at the service of Chairman Jackman and two or three workers were assigned to each precinct. President Grubb will be Chairman Jackman's lieutenant, and all Roosevelt boosters are at the command of these officers.

Roosevelt headquarters have been opened at 418 North Main street (upstairs in the Rowley block), equipped with telephones, Home 672, Sunset, Main 242. An attendant will be in charge at all times to give information and pass out Roosevelt literature.

The committee in charge wants the name and street address of every Roosevelt supporter who needs a conveyance to get to the polls. Telephone to headquarters, as above—Home, 672, Sunset, Main 242. Also, the committee wants a few more autos—only 17 have been volunteered to date. Report to headquarters.

And, finally, boosters, fieldmen, are wanted in large numbers in every precinct for general work, to maintain interest and enthusiasm and support the precinct committees. All who will help in this way should report at headquarters or to precinct captains.

Our slogan—Santa Ana 2 1/2 to 1 in favor of Roosevelt!

RADICAL DECISION MAY CAUSE RECALL

SEATTLE, May 11.—The decision of Judge Cornelius Hanford annulling the citizenship of Leonard Oleson because "he admitted he was a Socialist advocating radical changes in the institutions of the country," is creating the widest discussion of any judicial decision in the history of the Northwest. There is a general protest from Socialists and Progressives. It is rumored that there may be an attempt to impeach Hanford.

Oleson declared that he is unable financially to carry the decision to a higher court. He declared that it is his belief that the constitution guarantees political freedom, and that he is unable to see why party affiliations disbar his from citizenship.

WAS THE COMMERCE COURT CREATED FOR BIG BUSINESS?

Its Action in the Lemon Rates Case Would Seem to Indicate That Is Was—and Now President Taft Rushes to Its Rescue—What Beveridge Has to Say on This Matter and the Tariff.

Mr. Orange Grower, Mr. Lemon Grower, do you realize that it was Roosevelt's Interstate Commerce Commission that saved your tariff on lemons that the railroads were trying to take away from you in increased freight rates?

And do you realize that it was Taft's Commerce Court that tried to reverse the finding of the Interstate Commerce Commission on a mere technicality?

And have you noticed in yesterday's and today's news despatches that Taft has rushed to the rescue of his pet Commerce Court that is threatened with annihilation by the Progressives in Congress?

Listen to Senator Beveridge on this point, in his speech at Riverside Thursday night:

"Senator Beveridge on the Tariff
"Now for the tariff: You got an increase on lemons and they tell you that you owe it to the Republicans and should vote for Taft. I feel to see the logic of that. THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY IS NOT IN FAVOR OF ANY TARIFF ON LEMONS. IF YOU ARE TO MAINTAIN A LEMON TARIFF YOU MUST VOTE FOR AND ELECT A REPUBLICAN PRESIDENT, AND THERE IS ONLY ONE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE WHO CAN BE ELECTED, AND THAT IS THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

Before the new tariff on lemons went into effect the Southern Pacific railroad, anticipating such, raised the rate and took it away from you. The interstate commerce commission, created by Theodore Roosevelt, gave you back your former rate, but a new thing, the commerce court created by Taft, completely overturned the work done by the interstate commerce commission."

And now that the commerce court is in danger from an outraged people, President Taft is rushing to its rescue.

President Taft to the Rescue
Confirming the Washington dispatch in yesterday's Register, on this matter, this morning's Examiner has the following from its special correspondent in Washington:

ALL SAY BEVERIDGE'S SPEECH WAS ABSOLUTELY CONVINCING

Many of those who went to Long Beach last night to hear Senator Beveridge—John Beatty, A. J. Crookshank, W. L. Grubb, S. J. Jackman and others of like character and intelligence have expressed regret that every voter in Orange county could not have heard the great Indiana statesman. Especially do they wish that all sincere reformers who are in doubt as to Col. Roosevelt's sincerity and ability, or who are inclined to question the claim of the Roosevelt supporters that President Taft has failed to "make good," could have heard Senator Beveridge.

Pinchot and Beveridge Having Great Meetings

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—Ex-Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana and Gifford Pinchot, who was chief forester under the Roosevelt administration and under the Taft administration until dismissed at the behest of Ballinger—arrived in Los Angeles Thursday morning and have been busily engaged in speech-making ever since that time.

On Thursday Mr. Pinchot spoke at Covina, Azusa, Glendora and San Dimas in the day time and at Pomona at night. The day meetings were open-air affairs, each one attracting a big crowd and resulting in a temporary suspension of business. The great conservationist "takes" with the people and is a forceful and interesting speaker. His Pomona meeting at night was a triumphant one, and the audience manifested the keenest approval of all he had to say. In a characteristic phrase, Pinchot speaks of Senator La Follette as "one who has not learned to shoot away from the uniform he wears." In other words, the Wisconsin man is harming the Progressive cause—or threatens to harm it—by seeking to divide the Progressive vote. Yesterday Mr. Pinchot went to San Diego county, addressing House today passed the bill cutting off all appropriation for the commerce court, leaving that tribunal stranded after July 1 next.

President Taft will use his influence, however, to save the court, which is one of his pet creations. He will urge the Senate to insert in the bill the necessary funds for its continuance and to insist in conference that the House recede from its position.

Commerce Court Judge Accused
As will also be seen from the news despatches, serious accusations have been made against Judge Robert W. Archbald, of the court of commerce. He is charged with having asked railroads for favors in putting through a deal from which he personally would profit. It is a very grave indictment. The accused jurist is entitled to a full and fair inquiry and in the meantime it is but fair to him that public judgment be held in abeyance, pending the results of the inquiry.

The offense charged, if committed, was peculiarly reprehensible. The federal court of commerce was created to pass upon questions involving interstate commerce and therefore applying directly to railroads. For a jurist of this bench to solicit or to accept unsolicited favors from railroads would be a flagrant and unpardonable abuse deserving of immediate removal from office.

This tribunal, at best, has not created a favorable impression upon the American people by its narrowly technical rulings, most of them in favor of the common carriers and reversing the interstate commerce commission. The lemon-rate ruling, above referred to, is a case in point. The court of commerce undertook to overrule the action of the commerce commission in reducing the lemon freight from $1.15 to $1 per hundred pounds. The overruling decision was hinged upon a mere technicality. Of course, there was no evidence of improper favoritism toward the railroads, but, nevertheless, should Judge Archbald be proved guilty of soliciting favors from railroads it not only would cast reflection upon his judicial integrity but it practically would destroy public confidence, that may still be reposed, in the tribunal as a whole.

In the most heroic fight ever put up by firemen in Santa Ana, the fire, the hottest on record in Santa Ana, was kept confined to the building in which it started. With sacks thrown over them, the firemen plied streams from two hose. Stanley's blacksmith shop to the east of the iron building was saved, and the flames were held down in such manner that the fire at the east end did not reach proportions sufficient to crack the windows at the rear of the Central building.

Mystery of Starting

How the fire got its start is a mystery. The flames started either in the front of De Long's motorcycle shop, or in the west stairway leading up to the lodging-house. Those first on hand thought the fire began in the shop. Others think it started in the stairway and ate into the shop before it was discovered. When the firemen arrived, after a bell theater employee turned in an alarm from Fourth and Main, the windows of the northwest corner of the building, both floors, were belching flames, and the fire evidently was over nearly all of the building.

The occupants of the building with the exception of one escaped, saving scarcely any of their personal belongings.

The outside shell of the building was of corrugated iron. The inside supports soon gave way and the building crumpled down. Oliver Dunkin, a fireman, who was at work at the southwest corner adjoining the city jail, narrowly escaped being struck by the falling iron.

Some Narrow Escapes
Third street, was the carpenter shop of J. S. Mason, aged 74 years. Mason was asleep in his bed when he was awakened by heat and smoke. He seized some clothing, and staggered out. A purse containing about $70, all but $5 in paper money, left on a table, was burned. Mason figures his loss of tools at $300 and materials at $300, all he had in the world. He feels his loss severely. He had no insurance.

The southeast corner of the building were rooms rented by Mrs. Drake, a courtesan woman, and one room was sublet by her to Henry Weaver, bootblack at The Snake House, and his wife. Weaver was awakened by the choking smoke. He and his wife seized clothing and put it on in the alley after they got out. Weaver's pocketbook containing $25 was burned.

The south half of the building was the pool hall, closed last Monday night by the city trustees. In the front of it was Narote's barber-shop. The pool hall proprietor, Kobayashi, also had the lodging-house. He was away at Imperial. The pool tables and a stock of cigars were burned. Since the man paid $900 for the place, the Japs figure the loss at $900, no insurance reported. The barber-shop loss was probably $40.

In the Lodging House
The upstairs was the rooming-house, containing twenty-one rooms, numbering from the southwest corner down the south side for ten rooms, Nos. 1 to 10, then from the northeast corner down the north side, Nos. 11 to 21.

According to the Jap woman, there was no one in rooms 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 8 and 10, on the south side, 17, 18 and 19, on the north side.

ONE DEAD IN BURNING OF BUILDING

Old Structure at Third and Sycamore Destroyed by Flames; Narrow Escapes

NO INFORMATION OF VICTIM'S IDENTITY

Fire Broke Out About 2 O'Clock This Morning—Firemen

do Good Work

One unidentified person dead, one building and personal property destroyed, are the results of a fire that occurred this morning about 2 o'clock. The building was the old iron building at the southeast corner of Third and Sycamore streets, belonging to C. H. Stanley. It was E. S. De Long's motorcycle shop, J. S. Mason's carpenter shop, T. Kobayashi's poolroom, Narote's barber-shop, and Mrs. Drake's rooms on the lower floor, and Kobayashi's lodging-house on the upper floor.

The charred torso of a person, probably a Mexican man, was found in the ruins this morning, and was removed to Coroner Winbiger's morgue. Efforts to get information as to the roomers of the lodging-house have failed to produce anything that seems likely to lead to the identification of the legless, armless remains of the victim of the flames.

In the most heroic fight ever put up by firemen in Santa Ana, the fire, the hottest on record in Santa Ana, was kept confined to the building in which it started. With sacks thrown over them, the firemen plied streams from two hose. S. M. DAVIS IS CITY ATTORNEY

Huntington Beach City Trustees Finish Job of Making Appointments

HUNTINGTON BEACH, May 11.—At an adjourned session of the city trustees Thursday night, S. M. Davis of Santa Ana was named as city attorney, S. A. Moore of this city as recorder and H. B. Parks as street superintendent. This ends a bitter fight over the appointive offices. The trustees will meet again Monday evening to pass an ordinance authorizing the issue of $70,000 of municipal bonds for pier purposes. There is now no opposition to this step, and the ordinance will meet unanimous approval.

A movement has already been started for building a sewer system, and with the gas to be furnished shortly by the Southern Counties Gas Company from its Santa Ana plant, the three public improvements most needed here will have been secured. A letter from the commander of the Southern California Veterans' Association to the Board of Trade, received today, states that the encouragement of that body, which will occur in this city next August, is to be the largest ever held, as many of the veterans believe that it may be among the last held, owing to the steadily decreasing number of the old soldiers.

MRS. MCGILL BROKE DOWN

Gives the Real Facts in Regard to Her Case and Tells How She Suffered.

Jonesboro, Ark.—"I suffered a complete break down in health, some time ago," writes Mrs. A. McGill, from this place. "I was very weak and could not do any work. I tried different remedies, but they did me no good. One day, I got a bottle of Cardui. It did me so much good, I was surprised, and took some more.

Before I took Cardui, I had headache and backache, and sometimes I would cry for hours. Now I am over all that, and can do all kinds of housework. I think it is the greatest medicine on earth."

In the past fifty years, thousands of ladies have written, like Mrs. McGill, to tell of the benefit received from Cardui.

Such testimony, from earnest women, surely indicates the great value of this tonic remedy for diseases peculiar to women. Are you a sufferer? Yes? Cardui is the medicine you need. We urge you to try it.

Record of Presidential Candidate

TAFT'S RECORD ON RECALL OF COURT DECISIONS

Favored the Principle to Oblige "Poison Makers."

NOTORIOUS WHISKY RULING.

Recalled His Conscience to the Promulgation of a Presidential Order Legalizing Every Demand of the Makers of Imitation Whisky—He "Recalled" Seven Federal Court Decisions to Accommodate the Opponents of Roosevelt and Dr. Wiley.

Now that Mr. Taft is so violent in his opposition to any proposal to permit the people of a state to assert their understanding of the meaning of the constitution made by them when that meaning has been perverted by a judicial ruling, it is well to examine his past record in this particular. Recorded facts prove that President Taft is not opposed to the "recall of decisions" of the federal courts when the recall is made by "a representative part of the people," even though that part consists of one of 100,000,000 Americans.

Here is an "expose" especially interesting at this time. It appears in the editorial columns of the Philadelphia North American:

"Long before Theodore Roosevelt upheld the hands of Harvey Wiley and forced the passage of the pure food law there had been notorious frauds in the making, marking and branding of distilled liquors. But the question seemed pretty well settled by the upholding of the explicit provisions of the national pure food law in the rulings of Dr. Wiley, sustained by repeated messages of President Roosevelt, opinions of Attorney General Bonaparte and decisions of different federal courts.

Merely Common Sense. "The question was simply one of common sense. There was to be no prevention of or penalty for the sale of any sort of liquor. The rulings meant only that the purchaser was entitled to the privilege of learning from the label whether he was buying what he was paying for.

"Undoctored whisky was to be labeled 'whisky.' A mixture of two real whiskies was to be labeled 'blend.' A mixture of a whisky with something that is not whisky was to be labeled 'compound.' A concoction that smelled and tasted like whisky, but contained no whisky, was to be labeled 'imitation.'"

"That was all there was to the provisions of the pure food law governing interstate commerce in whisky. It was such a simple, incontrovertible regulation for square dealing that every American who thought he knew along what lines the administration of William H. Taft would be conducted scoffed at the idea that the question was not a closed chapter.

"When the rectifiers of Cincinnati and Peoria hinted at the influence they could bring to bear upon a Cincinnati newspaper and Speaker Cannon and prophesied the discrediting and the downfall of Wiley we thought them overconfident in proclaiming that they could reopen a contest which had been won and won over and over by the people, by the state food commissioners and friends of pure food before President Roosevelt and the federal courts.

"So there was wonder when there followed President Taft's executive order reopening the whisky branding question settled by Attorney General Bonaparte's successive opinions and President Roosevelt's orders giving executive effect thereto.

Taft's Conscience Recalled. "At the time of the ruling in favor of the swindlers by Solicitor General Bowers, in June, 1909, the North American said:

"The real meaning of this reopened controversy, of course, is that the conspiracy to weaken, break down and nullify the pure food laws is widespread, powerful and persistent. * * * With President Taft rests the responsibility of upholding credence or giving the lie to the general boasting of the drugsters of food and drink that the entire toll of Roosevelt and Wiley to safeguard the health of the people is to be obliterated before 1912 for the benefit of certain strong but not altruistic interests.

"Six months' consideration resulted in President Taft's recalling his conscience to the promulgation of a presidential decision legalizing every demand of the cheating poison makers of the Taft-Cox and Joe Cannon ballistics. But this notorious annulment of a portion of the work of Wiley and Roosevelt is not the point of present comment. The focus of present interest is President Taft's aversion toward any questioning of the sanctity of judicial decisions.

"But when the food committee of the National Consumers' league addressed to President Taft an appeal for the 'recall' of Dr. Wiley's resignation and cited certain facts decidedly pertinent to President Taft's horrified denunciations of 'poison makers' and 'subverters of the constitution,' who 'lay the ax to the root of the tree of liberty,' who dare question the infallibility of any judicial construction of any law? "For the Consumers' league makes clear in taking up the Taft decision in favor of the makers of imitation whisky that in this ruling the president recalled the decisions of President Roosevelt, Attorney General Bonaparte, Solicitor General Bowers and seven federal courts.

Seven Times Sustained. "Finding themselves unable to sway the Roosevelt administration in spite of the efforts in their behalf of Secretary Wilson, the whisky poisoners went into the courts. Seven times the Roosevelt ruling was sustained, as follows:

"Aug. 24, 1908, in federal court at Cincinnati.

"Aug. 27, 1908, in same court, strong supplemental opinion refusing a rehearing.

"United States circuit court for southern Illinois, later in the same year, completely sustained the Roosevelt ruling.

"Feb. 4, 1909, United States Circuit Judge Cochran, at Richmond, specifically ruled that the stuff which Roosevelt had ordered to be labeled as imitation whisky was exactly that.

"Aug. 11, 1909, the court of appeals for the District of Columbia broadly sustained the Roosevelt ruling.

"July 7, 1908, the United States district court for western New York completely sustained the Roosevelt ruling.

"The supreme court of the District of Columbia, by decree in a case, 'United States versus four barrels of liquid purporting to be whisky,' held that the contents was an imitation of whisky.

"Oct. 28, 1908, federal court at Baltimore broadly sustained the Roosevelt ruling that imitation whisky was imitation whisky, and must be so labeled.

Alphonse Taft's Opinion.

"What the Consumers' league failed to cite, however, was that President Taft in that one ruling not only recalled seven federal court decisions, but also another which, while it did not emanate from a court, was certainly judicial. For it was handed down by a great and honored jurist who sat in the cabinet of President Grant. This was the eighth decision recalled:

"Alcohol and whisky are, unquestionably, different articles in contemplation of law, as they are in fact, having different qualities and different values. (Opinion of Alphonse Taft, attorney general, construing section 349 of internal revenue laws, see Internal Revenue Record, Aug. 21, 1875, volume 2.)

"Just what process of reasoning the president employs to determine positively that he has the right to recall seven court decisions with a single signature, while the recall of one by the sober judgment of millions of citizens in a state would destroy our fundamental national liberties, we are unable to understand, except by remembering that striking portrait drawn by the lamented Dolliver of the amiable person in the White House 'entirely surrounded by men who know exactly what they want.'"

"GRATITUDE" MEANS MALIGNANT ATTACK UPON ROOSEVELT

Taft's Trade Not New to Men Who Know Him.

When Seeking the Presidency in 1908 He Strove to Appear as a Staunch Progressive—Wore a Mask For Two Years—Has Now Openly Stamped Himself as a Reactionary.

Washington, April.—Stung to the quick by his belated recognition of the long patent fact that the voters of the Republican party had repudiated his candidacy for renomination and are overwhelmingly in favor of the nomination of Colonel Roosevelt as their candidate for the presidency this year, Mr. Taft has at last thrown aside all restraint and carried out the threat which he has been muttering to his intimates for some weeks to speak out in public his real thoughts about the man who made him president.

In Mr. Taft's tirade against Mr. Roosevelt at Springfield, Mass., there is nothing essentially new to those who have been on anything more than relations of casual intimacy with the president for some time. It is a fact known to not a few of those closely connected with the campaign of 1908 that even at that time the Taft family was displaying that peculiarly malignant temper toward Mr. Roosevelt which so often takes the place of gratitude in the hearts of those who have benefited by a great service rendered by a friend. It is a fact known to not a few persons that at times during the campaign of 1908 the talk about Mr. Roosevelt among members of the Taft family was such as to cause the greatest uneasiness to the managers of Mr. Taft's campaign for the presidency, lest it should become public and work serious damage to the campaign. Those familiar with the true feeling toward Mr. Roosevelt in the Taft family have been surprised that Mr. Taft has concealed for so long his real attitude toward his benefactor.

From the time last fall when the strong sentiment of the country in favor of Colonel Roosevelt began to manifest itself unmistakably, there has been much talk from Taft sources about Colonel Roosevelt's ingratitude to Mr. Taft. It has been assumed by Mr. Taft's partisans that, because Colonel Roosevelt was instrumental in bringing about Mr. Taft's nomination and election to the presidency, he was therefore bound at all times, under all circumstances and at all costs, to support Mr. Taft's administration and Mr. Taft's renomination and election. That assumption is entirely unwarranted and has no logical justification. The fact is that Taft, the president, is not and never for one moment has been the Taft Mr. Roosevelt and his intimates associates knew as secretary of war and whom they supported as a candidate for the presidency.

While Mr. Taft was seeking the presidency he constantly sought to appear as a staunch and true progressive. But on that November night in 1908 when the count of the votes showed that he had been elected to the presidency, he ceased to make any effort actually to be a progressive. For some time he continued to wear a mask as a progressive, but in the last two years of his presidency he has not kept up even that feeble effort to deceive the people of the country. By his constant association with the Aldriches, the Cannon and the Lorimers, by his ready submission to their influence and advice, by his active support of the measures they devised and favored; by his co-operation with them in matters of patronage, and by his unblinking attempt to coerce the real progressives through the brazen use of federal patronage, he has stamped himself openly as the reactionary which he has always been at heart.

A single illustration will suffice for the demonstration of this proposition. In his speech at Cincinnati, in July, 1908, accepting the nomination for the presidency, Mr. Taft took occasion to reiterate his endorsement of Mr. Roosevelt and to enumerate some of the acts which he regarded as the distinctly beneficial achievements of his predecessor. In that speech he said:

"He [Mr. Roosevelt] recommended the passage of a law, which the Republican convention has since specifically approved, restricting the future issue of stocks and bonds by interstate railways to such as may be authorized by federal authority. He demonstrated to the people by what he said, by what he recommended to congress, and by what he did, the sincerity of his efforts to command respect for the law, and to save the country from the dangers of a plutocratic government, toward which we were fast tending."

In numerous speeches during the campaign of 1908 Mr. Taft declared his cordial support of Mr. Roosevelt's proposition to secure the enactment of a law controlling the issue of securities by interstate carriers. When he became president, he pretended to make such a law one of the paramount measures of his legislative program. He caused to be prepared, with much advertisement and publicity, a bill purporting to contain provisions aimed at such control of the issue of securities. This bill was drafted by the eminently successful corporation lawyer whom Mr. Taft had placed at the head of the department of justice. The moment that bill was read by the genuine progressives of the senate and house, they denounced its provisions to control the issue of securities as intended really to further the designs of the railroad reactionaries and the special interests whom Mr. Taft has steadily sought to please from the day he was inaugurated.

After a hard fight in the house, the Taft-Wickersham provisions were stricken from the bill and a substitute provision was adopted which at least embodied a recognition of the principle of federal control over the issue of such securities, and was, therefore, a distinct step in advance. When that measure reached the senate, Mr. Taft's allies and cronies there were vastly distributed by this provision. Aldrich, Crane, Penrose, Gallinger and all the other representatives of the special interests in the senate at once protested against it. These were the men with whom Mr. Taft was associating intimately, with whom he was working constantly, and upon whom he was relying for support in the senate.

They were the same men who had most vigorously opposed his nomination when they, like Mr. Roosevelt, believed him to be a real progressive, but already they had learned that his progressiveness was merely a mask worn for the purpose of securing the presidency. They knew now that he was as good a reactionary as any of them and they counted upon his support in defeating this provision for the control of the issue of securities by interstate carriers. They did not count in vain.

With Mr. Taft's knowledge and connivance, they arranged a deal with the Democratic opposition in the senate whereby they not only struck from the bill this provision which was in accordance with the Republican platform and the many speeches of Mr. Taft's campaign, but they stopped the further efforts of the real progressives in the senate to make the railroad bill, of which this provision was a part, a genuinely effective and valuable measure. Then they inserted in the bill as a sop to the public clamor for real legislation a provision for the appointment of a commission which was to determine not the method by which the government was to exercise its right to control the issue of securities by interstate carriers, but whether or not the government had such power. The appointment of this commission was a stultification of the Republican platform and of every speech Mr. Taft had made in support of that platform. It was fair notice to the whole country that from that day forward no faith or credence could be given by the country to any declaration of any Republican platform upon which Mr. Taft might be running for office.

But now, in the face of this incontrovertible fact, and of scores more of exactly similar purport and effect, Mr. Taft has the effrontery to stand before a public audience and denounce Theodore Roosevelt and present himself in the attitude of the one who has the right to feel aggrieved. It is an astounding exhibition of willingness to deceive the people of the country in the effort to secure office.

Do You Want Your Money's Worth?

Flanders "20" Touring Car, $800

The next time an automobile salesman tries to sell you a car at a discount, tell him that the old "something for nothing" story can't fool you.

The best automobiles in the world are sold for their list price, not a penny less. They are worth it. But the lame ducks, the second rates, the nondescript and assembled automobiles are in the public market looking for the highest bidder. Look out they don't get you. If gold-brick cars are not worth their list price, how much are they worth? Nobody knows. Cut price deals are frauds.

But if you want a car of one price to all and worth every cent of it, get either a Studebaker E-M-F "30," $1100, or Flanders "20," $800. You can trust them. You get all that you pay for, and that is more than you get with any other car at near their price. Studebaker guarantees them—that's the big reason. No matter what price temptation falls in your way, Studebaker E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" cars are far bigger bargains, because in years of good service and satisfaction they pay big returns.

We can prove it—Send for our new catalogue

END CAMPAIGN WITH MEETING

Edson and Either Eddy or Webster Are to Speak at Orange Monday

ORANGE, May 11.—The campaign for Theodore Roosevelt will be closed in Orange Monday night by the biggest meeting held here this campaign. Arrangements have been made by the energetic Roosevelt Club of this place.

The meeting is to be held at 8 o'clock at the Athletic Club building, with every indication that the hall will be crowded.

Two excellent speakers are to be present from Los Angeles. One of them will be Charles Farwell Edson, who took a prominent part in the campaign in favor of woman's suffrage. The other speaker will be either Guy Eddy, city prosecutor of Los Angeles, or Webster Davis, who was assistant secretary of the Interior under President McKinley.

Series of Lectures
H. J. Davidson of Boston, Mass., a representative of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of L. D. S., will hold a series of lectures on the "Seventh Day Sabbath" question, in the L. D. S. Church, corner First and Garfield, beginning Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and ending Tuesday evening, in which he purposes to show conclusively by illustration and Bible argument that the Seventh day Sabbath of the decalogue is not binding upon Christians. This should be of interest to all.

WERE WEDDED AT HIGH NOON

WESTMINSTER, May 11.—On Thursday at high noon, at the Westminster home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Murdy was celebrated the marriage of their daughter Edith to Forrest Harris of Santa Monica.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, the bride and groom descended the stairs and took their places in front of a screen covered with white roses and under an arch of the same fragrant flowers. The impressive ring ceremony was read by Rev. W. J. Millett of Wintersburg M. E. church. The pretty bride in her dainty costume of white embroidered Swiss, lace trimmed, was the central figure in a flower decorated room of fragrant white roses. The bride carried a shower bouquet of syringa blossoms. The bridesmaid, Miss Reech Murdy, a sister, was gown in white voile, fringe trimmed, and carried a shower bouquet of Cecil Bruner rose buds. The groom was supported by his cousin, Ray Guthrie of Santa Monica.

The bride's bouquet was caught by Miss Hetty Murdy. Following the ceremony and congratulations, in the dining room beautifully decorated in pink roses was served an elaborate five course dinner under the charge of Mrs. Harry Paul, formerly Miss Blanch Murdy, a bride of a month ago. The service did her great credit as a manager. Many beautiful presents of cut glass and silver were received, the bride, in her handsome traveling suit of white serge with white hat to match, and her husband were whisked away in an automobile amid showers of rice and good wishes.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Murdy and family, and Miss Ethel Waters of Wintersburg, Rev. W. J. Millett and family of Wintersburg, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bignart and daughter Ethel of Moneta, Mrs. M.

K. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Harris, Mr. and Mrs. David Crowley and daughter Vera, and Ray Guthrie of Santa Monica, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Burns and family of Long Beach, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Murdy and son of Hollywood, Mrs. Alack Barnes and sister, Mrs. L. A. Downie of Santa Ana, Mrs. L. Walkinshaw and daughters of Orange, and Miss Mary Burns of Perris.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Harris will reside in Santa Monica.

MILLIONS FOR GOOD ROADS

Millions for good roads! That is the most encouraging prospect for the good roads boosters have had for some time.

According to dispatches from Washington, the House has passed, an amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill which, if accepted by the Senate, will grant a subsidy to all highways used in rural free delivery service.

Under the provisions of the bill the roads will be divided into three classes with subsidies of $25, $20 and $15 a mile. Thus the government will aid the good roads movement to the extent of probably ten million dollars a year.

Probabilities are that the amendment will be materially changed in the Senate. It was supported by members of both parties in the House and is a good indication that the national government intends to play an important part in the growing movement for better means of rural transportation.

"The Taft Republicans were also early to act by placing at the head of their ticket two women as delegates at large. There must have been some wry faces among those old line politicians who had fought woman's suffrage so strenuously in legislative halls and through the press. But, apparently, they labelled their medicine, 'Good Politics' and swallowed it at a gulp. They were anticipating what the Roosevelt Progressive Republicans were logically bound to do. For, immediately following the election of Governor Johnson and the triumph of the Progressive Republican ticket in the state, the legislature submitted to the people an amendment providing for a yes or no vote on the question of woman's suffrage. Aided by the Progressives, the women, in October last, won their victory."—Mrs. Florence Collins Porter.

"We talk of the danger to our institutions that results when the people take the constitution in their own hands. Let me tell these wealth-blinded men a fact more dangerous than all political unrest in the world—that the majority of the wage-earners in the United States get less than $500 a year! Less than $500! How does it appear to you whose incomes are $5000 a year? Or $10,000. When there are many whose incomes are $50,000 a year, $100,000, half a million, twenty millions? And a certain type of old-school politician, the sort who never reads books, wonders at the mysterious growth of the Socialist vote. They think—and I have seen the statement in a paper published not a thousand miles from San Francisco—that the people are growing hysterical."—Former Senator Albert J. Beveridge.

"In order to avoid a division among the Progressives, Senator La Follette proposed that he should write a letter to Colonel Roosevelt, offering, in case the Colonel permitted his name to be used, to withdraw in his favor and throw the La Follette strength behind the Roosevelt candidacy. In the contrary event the Roosevelt strength should be thrown behind the La Follette candidacy. Senator La Follette's own proposal to withdraw in favor of Colonel Roosevelt destroys every argument the Senator now makes against him. Colonel Roosevelt's record as president was the same then as it is now. He was a good enough Progressive for La Follette to support then, and that was before the Columbus speech. In whom is the change?"—Gifford Pinchot, in address at Petaluma.

Outside of his home state and one other not a single progressive leader in either house of congress went with La Follette. Senators Clapp, Bristow, Works, Bourne, Crawford and Poin-dexter, Norris, leader of the progressives in the House, and Kent of California, Ben Lindsey, George L. Record of New Jersey, McCormick of Illinois, and last, but not least, Heney and Johnson of California—the men who made La Follette's candidacy possible—every one of these men are now for Roosevelt. Not a single progressive of national reputation has taken the stump for La Follette since it became clear that the effect of his campaign is to divide the progressives and give Taft his last remaining chance for the nomination.

Roosevelt's attitude on the tariff question is most acceptable to all California's protected industries. He believes in protection and in a real tariff commission. Like Senator Bever-bridge, he insists that protection shall not be a football of politics, but on the other hand wholly removed from it. Intelligent application of the protective principle, through a commission fully clothed with authority, would be the best assurance possible of stability of tariff schedules. The existing tariff board, which Aldrich unloaded on Taft, was created in a scheme of false pretenses.

Despite the denial issued by Congressman Ralph Cole, Taft's emissary plenipotentiary now in California, that gentleman did send a telegram to Washington stating that the Taft campaign in California was hopeless. Notwithstanding that gentleman's denial it is also true that he took a strong wallow at one Charles Milfin Hammond who is supposed to be the leader of the Taft movement in California. The details of how Cole afterwards met Hammond and squared himself are also available.

Governor Hiram W. Johnson has just completed a tour south of Tehachapi, where he addressed crowds that jammed the six greatest auditoriums in the southland in as many different cities, and was also forced to address six great overflow meetings. Johnson is leading Roosevelt's fight. Former Governor Gillett has just completed a tour south of Tehachapi where he addressed a crowd that half filled a theatre in Los Angeles; spoke to a crowd of several hundred in San Diego and then returned north. Gillett is leading Taft's fight.

Gifford Pinchot, who came to California to assist in the campaign for Roosevelt during the closing week, was one of the two bureau chiefs of whom Secretary Wilson complained that subordinates in the Department of Agriculture became greater and more powerful than the Secretary himself. The other was Dr. Wiley, head of the chemistry bureau. Both of these exceptionally able subordinate chiefs were duly eliminated, with the aid of interests that could bring pressure to bear.

The talk of a compromise on Associate Justice Hughes emanates from the Taft following. He seems to be their only suggestion as a dark horse. Nowhere along the line has there been an intimation from the Roosevelt side of the advisability of agreeing on another candidate. It is the weaker side that refers to possibilities of a third man. It has been the standpat press that has done so in California.

"It's not the judicial type of man we need for president. We need a fighter. The leaders of the forces of evil, the men who employ child labor and sell diseased meat and pay starvation wages are fighters—the shrewdest fighters that can be secured. The people need a fighter on their side; and they need a better fighter than all the others."—A. J. Beveridge.

That the Roosevelt Republicans representing the Progressive cause were quick to recognize California womanhood by placing two women on their ticket goes without saying. The Progressives have steadily favored the women of California.

The inroads of La Follette's campaign have not been consequential. There will be no great division of the California progressive vote. The claim that Roosevelt will carry every county in the state is no idle one.

The Dangerous, Disgusting House Fly

L. O. Howard, Chief of the Bureau of Entomology of the State Department of Agriculture.

The insect we now call the "house fly" should in the future be termed the "typhoid fly," in order to call direct attention to the danger of allowing it to continue to breed unchecked.—L. O. HOWARD.

Article III.

CARRIAGE OF DISEASE

In army camps, in mining camps, and in great public works, bringing together large numbers of men for a longer or shorter time, there is seldom the proper care of excreta, and the carriage of typhoid germs from the latrines and privies to food by flies is common and often results in epidemics of typhoid fever.

And such carriage of typhoid by flies is by no means confined to these great temporary camps. In farmhouses in small communities and even in the badly cared-for portions of large cities typhoid germs are carried from excrement to food by flies, and the proper supervision and treatment of the breeding places of the house fly become most important elements in the prevention of typhoid.

In the same way other intestinal germ diseases are carried by flies. The Asiatic cholera, dysentery, and infantile diarrhea are all so carried. Nor are the disease-bearing possibilities of the house fly limited to intestinal germ diseases. There is strong circumstantial evidence that tuberculosis, anthrax, yaws, ophthalmia, smallpox, tropical sore, and parasitic worms may be and are so carried. Actual laboratory proof exists in the cases of a number of these diseases, and where lacking is replaced by circumstantial evidence amounting almost to certainty.

Remedies and Preventives
A careful screening of windows and doors during the summer months, with the supplementary use of sticky fly papers, is a preventive measure against house flies known to everyone, and there seems to be little hope in the near future of much relief by doing away with the breeding places. A single stable in which a horse is kept will supply house flies for an extended neighborhood. People living in agricultural communities will probably never be rid of the pest, but in cities, with better methods of disposal of garbage and with the lessening of the number of horses and horse stables consequent upon electric street railways, bicycles, and automobiles, the time may come, and before very long, when window screens may be discarded. The prompt gathering of horse manure, which may be variously treated or kept in a specially prepared receptacle, would greatly abate the fly nuisance, and city ordinances compelling horse owners to follow some such course are desirable. Absolute cleanliness, even under existing circumstances, will always result in a diminution of the numbers of the house fly, and, in fact, most household insects are less attracted to the premises of what is known as the old-fashioned house-keeper than to those of the other kind.

WHAT LA FOLLETTE THOUGHT OF ROOSEVELT IN JULY 1911

FROM ADDRESS BY SENATOR LA FOLLETTE IN U. S. SENATE, JULY 13, 1911.

"President Roosevelt was so strongly entrenched in the confidence and affection of the American people that they were ready to set aside a tradition that has been preserved since the time of Washington—to elect him for a third term as their president. The man whom he chose as his successor was nominated as the candidate of the Republican party against William Jennings Bryan, the leader of the Democratic party, easily the second most popular American living, and the contest promised to be a close and exciting one.

"It is an interesting study in political psychology to observe the campaign devotion of Mr. Taft to Roosevelt and the Roosevelt policies. In his speech of acceptance, delivered at Cincinnati on the 22nd day of September, Roosevelt, the idol of the American people, seemed to be uppermost in the mind of Candidate Taft. Around Roosevelt and the record of his administration and the progressive ideals which had begun to take the form of settled policies the candidate built the chief strength of an otherwise ordinary discussion of issues. In one of his tributes to Roosevelt in his speech he said:

"He demonstrated to the people by what he said, by what he recommended to Congress, by what he did, the sincerity of his efforts to command respect for the law, and to save the country from the dangers of a military government, toward which we were fast tending. In this work,

Mr. Roosevelt had the support and sympathy of the Republican party, and its chief hope of success in the present controversy must rest on the confidence which the people of the country have in the sincerity of the party's declaration and its platform that it intends to continue his policies.

"The speech covers 28 printed pages on the Republican campaign text-book, and in the course of it President Roosevelt and his policies were referred to 26 times. The candidate then had a very clear conception of these progressive policies, and the high favor in which they stood with the American people. In whatever he said, wherever he spoke, in all that he wrote during that campaign period, he kept the militant figure of Roosevelt always in the center of the stage—steadily in the glare of the spotlight. The American people were never allowed for one moment to forget that he was the chosen instrument to fulfill the great purposes of the great man who had committed to his hands the work of his administration, finished and unfinished.

"The people elected Mr. Taft in the belief that he would hold fast to all that Mr. Roosevelt had gained for the public, sustain his forces in the field, re-enforce and support them, revoke no orders, reverse no action, but apply himself to crystallizing into statute law the public opinion, which President Roosevelt organized as a great creative force throughout the land."

Verdict of the Party On Theodore Roosevelt

Four years ago when the Republican national convention met in Chicago, the very first plank which it adopted for its national platform was one in recognition of the splendid services of Roosevelt to the party and the nation. It was as follows:

"In this, the great era of American advancement, the Republican party has reached its highest service under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt. His administration is an epoch in American history. In no other period since national sovereignty was won under Lincoln, has there been such mighty progress in those ideals of government which make for justice, equality and fair dealing among men.

The highest aspirations of the American people have found voice. Their most exalted servant represents the best aims and noblest purposes of all his countrymen. American manhood has been lifted to a nobler sense of duty and obligation. Conscience and courage in public station and higher standards of right and wrong in private life have become cardinal principles of political faith; capital and labor have been brought into closer relations of confidence and interdependence, and the abuse of wealth, the tyranny of power and all the evils of privilege and favoritism have been put to scorn by the simple, many virtues of justice and fair play.

"The great accomplishments of President Roosevelt have been, first, a foremost, a brave and impartial enforcement of the law, the prosecution of illegal trusts and monopolies, the exposure and punishment of evildoers in the public service, the more effective regulation of the rates and services of the great transportation lines, the complete overthrow of preferences, rebates and discriminations, the arbitration of labor disputes, the amelioration of the condition of wage-workers everywhere, the conservation of the natural resources of the country, the forward step in the improvement of the inland waterways, and always the earnest support and defense of every wholesome safeguard which has made more secure the guarantees of life, liberty and property.

"These are the achievements that will make for Theodore Roosevelt his place in history, but more than all else the great things he has done will be an inspiration to those who have yet greater things to do. We declare our unflinching adherence to the policies thus inaugurated and pledge their continuance under a Republican administration of the government."

ONE DEAD IN THE BURNING OF BUILDING

19 on the north side. In room 3 on the south side were three Mexicans who took rooms last night. The Jap woman thought two were going to sleep in No. 3 and one in No. 6, but an three slept in No. 3, leaving No. 6 vacant. These men were awakened when fire broke through the floor. One of them, Silverio Doroteiro, lost his hat and one shoe. These men escaped by the back stairs. They were employed thinning beets on the San Joaquin ranch.

Did Not Know Him
The only others known by the Jap woman to have been on the south side were Ed. Molino and his father, in room 7. The father, Maximilian, states that there was a man in No.

8 last night, and this man undoubtedly was the victim. The Jap woman insists that she did not rent that room last night. The elder Molina says he saw the man go in, that he was 25 or 30 years old, but Molina did not know him. It is probable that this man, as is said frequently to have been done, went to the room and took a bed without the formality of consulting the landlady. If that was the case, the chances of ever finding out who he was are slim.

North Side Roomers
In room 11 was a Mexican, who got out. The next two rooms were occupied by a woodchopper, Pico Rhvel, and the next by a janitor, John Porter. They escaped. Porter lost $100 savings. In room 15 was J. V. Verlarde and his wife, a sister of Ed. Molina. They got out with few clothes. Mrs. Verlarde, in her bare feet, warned the Jap woman was in No. 16. He got out. Nos. 20 and 21 were occupied by the Jap woman and her two babies. It was with difficulty that the woman and children escaped. The flames were in their room.

Two Insurances
C. H. Stanley bought the lot and building ten years ago for $1500. The lot is now worth $10,000. Stanley carried insurance of less than $1000. Stanley did not know of the fire until he got up this morning.

De Long figures his loss between $2800 and $3000, with $1500 insurance. In the shop were seven motorcycles, five second-hand machines belonging to De Long, one to Joe Sothard of Huntington Beach and one to R.F. Jack of Tustin, the last two being left at the shop for repair. De Long lost a lot of sundries.

No Identification
The torso of the dead man was uncovered this morning when a gang of county prisoners under Deputy Sheriff Stacey and Squires began dragging off the iron debris. The coroner took the remains in charge. He is satisfied from his examination that the body is that of a man. The coroner has made diligent inquiry of all lodgers, and has found none who knows of anyone missing from among the lodgers or regular roomers.

A prisoner in the city jail, placed there early last night for intoxication, was awakened by Officer Ryan and given his freedom. The city jail was but a few feet from the south side of the building.

Miss Ava Wells Hostess at a Charming Luncheon For College Mates From City

Miss Ava Wells entertained the Alumni of the College of Fine Arts, U. S. C., of which society she is the president, at a two o'clock luncheon at her home on East Fifth street today. Pink and white Maman Cochet roses were effectively used in the living rooms, and on the long rose-screened porch where the pretty six-course luncheon was served, miniature bouquets of Cecil Bruner roses in tiny rose bowls formed centerpieces for the small tables. Pink and white were also seen in the ices, cakes and nut cases, and in the pretty hand-painted place cards bearing winsome girls' faces, which marked covers for: Prof. and Mrs. W. L. Judson, Mesdames Susan May Barry Dando, Carl Oscar Smith, J. Freeman Cook and Mary Godfrey; Misses Edith Carey, Alma Cook, Myrtle Godfrey, Miriam Lee, Katherine and Hilda Sorenson, Edna Blumve, Hulda Kalmeyer, Edna Chess, Vivian Stringfield, Arley Tottenham, Buelah May, Lena Moss Terrell, Martha Schmierer and Katherine McManaman.

Following the luncheon, the regular business meeting of the society was attended to and arrangements made for the annual banquet which is to be given at the Ebell Club House in Los Angeles in June.

2. The second issue is to elect delegates to the national convention to carry out your preference. To vote on this stamp cross in square opposite list of delegates printed in column below your candidate for president.

Economic Section Number 5
Mrs. W. A. Bartlett proved a delightful hostess to the recently formed economic class at her attractive home on East Walnut yesterday afternoon. Despite the carnival which drew so many people to the city, there was a good attendance. The leader Mrs. McElree, presided over the business portion, later giving the program over into the hands of the hostess and her assistants, who had planned a number of pleasant features among which were two or three vocal numbers sweetly sung by little Mabel Miller and Ruth Bartlett. These dainty maidens also assisted in serving refreshments, which were prepared and demonstrated by Miss Clausen, the Domestic Science teacher.

The meeting was altogether both enjoyable and profitable.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. B. F. Nimmo, corner of Lyon and First streets, June 14th.

Fourth Birthday Celebrated
Margaret Cubbon was four years old yesterday, so her mother, Mrs. Will Cubbon, invited fourteen of her little girl playmates to come to her home on F street and help celebrate the event.

As none of the little tots had "previous engagements" the entire invited list arrived promptly and showered Margaret with many pretty birthday presents with which to remember the happy day. The party then went to French Street Park, which is close by, and various out-door games were played. Mrs. Cubbon was assisted by Miss Margaret Ore and Miss Katherine Cubbon. The refreshments, which proved a very pleasing feature of the entertainment, consisted of pink and white ice cream and cake and each small guest was given a May basket filled with assorted candies. The group of little girls, clad in their prettiest dresses, made a sweet picture as they played games and sat on the grass in the park. The children had a lovely time and wished Margaret many happy returns of the day.

The following little misses were present: Isabel Lopez, Charlotte Pine, Florence Rodgers, Dollie Rodgers, Katherine Cubbon, Katherine Allen, Ruth Thomas, Eleanor Embree, Ruth and Jean Smith, Mary Woodward, Hazel Cubbon, Ruth Langley and Mabel Harvey.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wasser Entertain With Evening Whist Party

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wasser entertained at their home on French street last evening complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. George Balderston and Mr. and Mrs. Verne Whitson, who are soon to move into the two pretty bungalows which they have built on South Main street.

The attractiveness of the Wasser home was enhanced by a lavish use of Maman Cochet roses, both pink and white varieties being gracefully arranged in bowls and vases. The diversion of the evening was progressive whist of which there were four tables of players. The guests found their seats at the card tables by means of hand-painted tickets of a pink rose design. Mrs. W. W. Cleavenger held high score at the close of the games and was presented with a shower bouquet of Cecil Bruner roses tied with pink ribbon and Verne Whitson won the gentlemen's prize, a dozen cigars tied with ribbon in imitation of the shower bouquet.

Those enjoying the Wassers' hospitality were the honorees, Mr. and Mrs. Verne Whitson and Mr. and Mrs. George Balderston, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reese, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Cleavenger, Miss Cleavenger, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wasser, Miss Alice Wasser, Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Whitson, Mrs. Mary Whitson and Miss Martha Whitson.

Coming Concert
The choir of the First Baptist church under the direction of Mr. W. A. Benjamin are preparing for their concert to be given the evening of May 28, in the Baptist church. This will be the closing concert for the season and will have on its program a number of new songs and organ numbers.

The rehearsal Friday evening was an encouraging one to the director. The singers worked well and got some splendid effects.

Carmen's Waltz Chorus is one of the numbers being prepared and is an elaborate thing, which, if well rendered, will be representative of the strength of the choir as it is a mixed voice chorus. Sir Arthur Sullivan's Slumber Song, "Oh Hush Thee My Baby," is another one of the numbers for the program.

Music Section
The Music Section of the Ebell Society will meet Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. G. Hull on North Main street.

Held Regular Meeting
The Daughters of Veterans held a regular meeting in the G. A. R. Hall last evening, with Department President Mrs. Della Bishop present. After her tent closed a social time with games and music was enjoyed.

W. R. C. Gave Successful Tea
The ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps held a well-attended tea in the G. A. R. Hall yesterday afternoon. The lodge room was decorated with sweet peas and the tables in the banquet room were served, were ornamented with bouquets of roses. The program rendered was as follows:
"Old Glory," James Whitcomb Riley
—F. S. Haughwout.
Instrumental Solo—Mrs. H. A. Mosser.
"Patriotism"—Mrs. I. D. Hills.

Classmates Were Entertained
The eighth grade of Jefferson school was pleasantly entertained last evening by Fred Robinson at the home of his mother, Mrs. W. S. Rose, on Parton street. Red and yellow are the class colors of the eighth grade, so these colors prevailed in the decorations which consisted of garlands of crepe paper with red geraniums and yellow roses. Japanese lanterns twinkled here and there over the lawn, where the young people played games and later enjoyed refreshments.

On Water Conservation And Forest Protection

At the meeting of the Tri-Counties Reforestation Association Thursday at Placentia, Chairman Francis Cuttle presented the report which is printed below. A brief account of the proceedings of the meeting appeared in yesterday's issue of this paper.

To the Tri-Counties Reforestation Committee,

Gentlemen:—The matter of co-operation between the Forest Service and water companies and others interested in the prevention of fires on our water shed has been worked out in the form of contracts between the Forest Service and the different water companies, whereby an ample reserve force can be called out promptly in case of forest fires and thus form a working force that it is hoped will be sufficient to successfully overcome any fire which may occur upon our water shed in the future. Supplies of blankets and tools have been secured and placed in safe places for use at a moment's notice. Arrangements have been made to have provisions packed while the men are being assembled, so that it should not take more than one hour's time, from the time the call is made, before the men will be ready to move. Arrangements have been made to take the men by auto as close as possible to the place where the fire occurs.

The recent fire in the San Bernardino mountains, starting in Devil's canyon and running to the top of the mountains, started from burning brush along the right-of-way of the Southern Sierras Power Company, and is a reminder that forest fires are still possible, and while the one referred to did not do a great deal of damage, burning over only 200 acres of land, the greatest precaution will be necessary to prevent the destruction of timber and brush on our water shed. Eternal vigilance in this, as in other things, is the price of safety.

Additional Patrolmen
At a meeting in December the question of additional patrolmen for the summer months was pretty generally discussed, and at that time Supervisor Charlton stated that he thought it would be necessary to have three additional patrolmen to watch the canyons and other routes where campers, hunters, etc., travel during the summer months. Your chairman at that time offered to pay the expense of one man for three months if the committee would pay the expense of one, and the offer is still good. The recent fire in the San Bernardino mountains is a reminder that there is a great necessity for these extra patrolmen. Your chairman is in receipt of a letter from Supervisor Charlton, dated April 17, calling our attention to this matter and stating that the salaries of these men will be $3.00 per month, and asking whether or not he may engage the men for the summer work. Some action by this committee at this meeting is necessary on this important matter.

County Appropriation
Your chairman, in company with District Forester DuBois of San Francisco, appeared before the board of supervisors of the county of San Bernardino and requested an appropriation equal to one-half of the amount received by the county of San Bernardino from the national government, as returns for sale of timber in the Angeles Forest. We were very cordially received and the supervisors heartily endorsed the work being done by this committee, and the Water Conservation Association, and willingly passed a resolution authorizing the appropriation of the amount requested, which will be about $1300.

Forest Supervisor Charlton advises us that many additional fire lines, about 12 feet wide, are being cleared along the ridges and back bones in the mountains to enable men more quickly to reach all parts of the mountains in case of bad fires. These will also be used for back firing where that is found to be necessary.

Forestry Bill
The State Conservation Commission has had one meeting with lumbermen interested in legislation pertaining to the cutting of timber, prevention of fire, taxation, etc., in the forests of our state. The meeting lasted two days and the owners of timber seemed very willing to co-operate in any legislation that would perpetuate the forests of our state and prevent needless waste in cutting of timber, destruction by fire, etc. Mr. Walker of the great T. B. Walker interests going so far as to state that he believed that state supervision of cutting of timber on private lands is the only means whereby the interests of the public can be properly safeguarded.

There seems to be a wide difference of opinion between the owners of timber and the United States forest service as to the best method of preventing forest fires. Many of the owners of timber declaring that light burning during the winter and spring months, before the forest litter becomes thoroughly dry, is the most effective method of preventing destructive forest fires during the summer months. This is not concurred in at all by the Forest Service officials, who assert very forcibly that all fires should be kept out of the forests, so far as possible, and that the forest litter will rot down year by year and will not become a menace to the standing timber. They further assert that the so-called light burning is destructive to all small trees and makes reproduction almost impossible.

The members of the State Conservation Commission are to make a trip into the pine and redwood districts in June to study this matter at first hand. Only a rough draft of the forestry bill has yet been discussed and it is hoped, after the inspection in June, that the data that is now being secured will be available so that a bill may be prepared that will be satisfactory to the timber men, as well as those who are depending on the preservation of forest cover for the conservation of water.

Conservation of Water
As the matter of the conservation of water is the ultimate end sought by the operations of this committee, it may not be out of place here to give a little information of the work of the Conservation Association in conserving water during the past three months. As is well known to all, very little rain fell during the early part of the present year, so that there was no storm water available, and consequently none was spread until the 6th of March. From that time until the 29th of April an average of about 5000 inches was spread and sunk on the lands of the Water Conservation Association and on government land withdrawn for this purpose. The effect of the spreading of this storm water will be watched carefully by water companies securing their supply of water from the San Bernardino artesian basin, so that a comparison may be made between the year 1912 and that of 1911, when such a splendid increase in the gravity and artesian flow was noticeable. Up to date in 1912 the water has not been as high in the water plane as during the spring of 1911. If this proves to be the case in the year 1912, and the flow of water shall not be quite as large as the year 1911, it will not prove that the spreading of water is not beneficial, but that the increase in flow in streams and wells during the summer months depends upon the amount of water spread on the debris the spring or winter preceding.

Our operations in the spreading of storm water are being studied by the officials of other water companies in the state, and is to be made the subject of investigation by the Conservation Commission of the state of California, under the supervision of W. C. Mendenhall of the United States Geological Survey, $1500 having been set aside by the State Conservation Commission for the purpose of making this investigation and report. It is believed by the members of the commission that authoritative information on this subject may be very valuable to the people not only of the state of California but other parts of the United States, and in fact all places where water is valuable and conditions exist similar to those found in the San Bernardino valley.

Water Commission Bill
The main subject for discussion at the meeting today is the bill prepared by the State Conservation Commission, known as the "Water Commission Bill," copies of which have been sent to each member of the committee.

In a state such as California, having the wide differences in temperature, seasons, products from the soil and use of water, it is a difficult matter to enact any law that will do justice to all—prevent the waste and loss of water, which is so valuable in the south and of so little consequence in many localities in the north, and is the source, when properly used, of so much of the wealth produced in the state. This consideration of such a bill as this should have the most intelligent and careful attention by all interested parties. The insistence by any locality or interest that only the things which are essential to them and their particular locality shall be cared for in such a bill, without due consideration for the conditions existing in other parts of the state, and the rights of other people interested in the use and conservation of water, will only lead to disorder and possibly the prevention of any legislation for the better use of this valuable natural resource. Consideration for the rights of others, and a tendency not to insist on thinking only of ourselves is likely to be met more than half way by our good friends in the northern part of the state, and if we show such a spirit it is quite likely that the different interests and conditions in the different localities may be harmonized, and a law enacted at the next session of the legislature which will ultimately be of great benefit to the whole state of California.

I urge upon all the members of the committee the most careful and conscientious consideration of the bill, known as the "Water Commission Bill," to be considered and discussed at this meeting.

Respectfully submitted,
FRANCIS CUTTLE,
Chairman Tri-Counties Reforestation Committee.
Riverside, Cal., May 9th, 1912.

LONG BEACH TO HAVE NATURAL GAS SUPPLY

President P. E. Hatch of the Long Beach Consolidated Gas Company said today that arrangements had been made by the company whereby Long Beach within six months would be supplied with natural gas from the Midway field, being brought here from Los Angeles by an eight-inch main. Arrangements have also been made whereby if the natural-gas supply is interfered with the gas of a Los Angeles concern can be turned into the pipes. This arrangement will enable the company to discontinue its plant at Seaside Park. The natural gas has 1000 heat units against 600 of the artificial product.
